The Pictorial History of DeQuincy & Remembering With Ratliff In Hardback!

The Pictorial History of DeQuincy is a 8 1/2 x 11 hardback full of photos depicting the history of DeQuincy since it's humble beginnings as a railroad town.

Professor T. J. Ratliff taught three generations of DeQuincy students and was also know as "DeQuincy's Historian." In 1970, Ratliff began writing a column of remembrances and local history for the DeQuincy News and The DeQuincy Journal. He passed away in 1972, but his column was one of the most read features of these two local newspapers. Ratliff's love of history was transmitted to the majority of his students and many of them became History majors in college because of his teachings. With the goal to preserve the history of DeQuincy's collections of all of the columns from this fascinating man has been reproduced into this one volume for future generations to come. You can purchase the books at the DeQuincy Railroad Museum or by ordering them by mail at a cost of $40 each, plus $7.50 shipping.

Proceeds benefit the Railroad Museum's Preservation Project.
